

Allyn Samachar

Vol. 2 Issue no. 6

The secret of your success is found in your daily routine.

JOHN C. MAXWELL

May is a time of focus, perseverance, and quiet strength. As the semester draws to a close and final exams take center stage, we are reminded of the importance of dedication and discipline. In the words of Thomas Edison, "There is no substitute for hard work." May encourages us to stay grounded, give our best, and trust in the process we've committed to all along.

This month is not just about tests and deadlines—it's about growth under pressure. Even in the midst of stress and fatigue, we discover resilience we didn't know we had. The journey through exams is challenging, but it is also a powerful reminder of our capability to rise, adapt, and persist.

As we close one chapter and prepare for the next, let's take pride in how far we've come. May invites us to pause, reflect, and move forward with purpose. After all, every end is just the beginning of something new.

Anjali Walekar (SE CSE)

Anjali's May was a testament to focus, determination, and quiet achievement. As end-semester exams demanded her full attention, she rose to the challenge with resilience and clarity. Balancing preparation and pressure, she remained committed to her goals, channeling her energy into every paper, every revision, and every late-night study session.

Anushree Verma (SE CSE)

For Anushree, May was not a storm to weather—it was a challenge to master. While others counted down to the end, she dove deeper into her books, embracing the rigor of end-semester exams like a scholar in her element. Her desk became a command center; her notes, a carefully built map through the maze of subjects.

Kanchan Kumari (SE IT)

Kanchan's May was a juggling act—and she handled it with quiet confidence. Between end-semester exams and other commitments pulling her in different directions, her plate was full. But she didn't let the pressure shake her. With smart planning and a steady mindset, she made space for everything that mattered.

Bhanavi Pandey (TE CSE)

Bhanavi's May was marked by calm focus and quiet strength. As exams unfolded, she remained composed, handling each challenge with steady confidence. While many felt the pressure, she stayed centered, trusting her preparation and pacing herself with intention.

In May, Bhanavi showed that grace under pressure is a strength all its own, and that a composed mind often leads to the best results.

Piyusha Nandivadekar (SE Comps)

Piyusha's May was simple and focused. With end-semester exams on the horizon, she kept things steady—revising at her own pace and staying consistent with her efforts. It wasn't a rush to the finish, but a step-by-step journey through each subject.

She handled the month with quiet determination, doing what needed to be done without overcomplicating things. There were ups and downs, like any exam season, but she stayed on track and made it through with a level head.

The May Newsletter reflects the quiet strength and steady perseverance of our ladies. Through exams, challenges, and busy schedules, they showed focus, balance, and resilience. Their efforts, though sometimes unseen, speak volumes. As we turn the page to a new month, we carry with us the lessons, growth, and determination that May has shaped. Here's to continued progress, new beginnings, and the quiet victories that build our future.

“Success is the sum of small efforts,
repeated day in and day out.”

– Robert Collier